Dear Bill:

The wines - the equivalent of 2006 bottles - will go forward from here Monday, and I hope will reach you without incident.

I enclose herewith packer's list. It may be useful to you in connection with identifying boxes. Otherwise, as you will notice, it is not as adequate as my original list, since many of the years are not identified, nor are the magnums set apart from the bottles.

I assume you are about to arrive at your post and wish you every good luck in the world.

With affectionate regards to Peggy and yourself, I am

Ever yours,

The Honorable
William A. M. Burden,
American Ambassador,
Brussels.

Bonn/Bad Godesberg, Germany
September 4, 1959

Dear Bill:

In further relation to my letter of September 1, 1959, I took an inventory of my wine cellar and am enclosing the result.

You will notice when you look the list over that it appears I will have disposable, in general categories, the following:

Champagne (I underestimated this by one case in my previous letter.)	48 bottles	✓
Red Burgundies, 1947	41 bottles	✓
Red Bordeaux, 1947 (I will check shortly on the Chateau Latour and see whether the rest are also magnums.)	912 bottles & 6 magnums
Red Burgundies, 1945	113 bottles & 99 magnums	✓
Red Bordeaux, 1937	28 bottles	✓
Red Burgundies, 1937	10 bottles	✓
Red Bordeaux, 1928	333 bottles	✓
This totals	1485 bottles & 105 magnums
(Subject to check as to further magnums.)

In thinking the matter over, if you should desire them, I would be glad to sell them to you if we could ascertain some reasonable way of having them priced. I would not, however, have any interest in selling a portion of them since, if I keep any, I should rather keep all, and it would be no more trouble for me to store the whole quantity in Paris than a portion of it.

I do not want to tout my own wines, but my guess is, if anyone wanted to buy such wines in one lot, they would find them unobtainable.

As to packing and shipping, my suggestion would be you pay for the packing, which would be, comparatively speaking, a trifling expense since the 1947 Bordeaux are still in their original cases and I have cases on hand in which the other bottles were delivered to me from Paris. I would attend to the transportation.

You might cheer Peggy up by telling her that one of the best porcelain shops in the world, if she is interested especially in Tournai, is in Brussels. Although I had frequently been to Brussels and have always favored 18th century Tournai, it was not until this year that I was told of this place. As of possible interest, the firm is Pol Michiels, Av. Ad. Buyl, 12-14-16, Brussels.

With warmest personal regards,

Ever yours,

P. S. The Dom Perignon cost me in Paris in Feb. 1959
$221.06 for 5 cases, or $44 per case.

P. S. I was at the Pyramide, Vienne about ten days ago and thought it might amuse you to hear the prices at which some of the wines in which you are likely to be interested were stated on their wine card. Obviously retail prices are much higher than dealers' prices. The comparison which chiefly intrigues me is that between 1945 and 1947 red Bordeaux and Burgundies. For some reason I have stubbornly clung to the idea that when the 45's finally mature they will excel the 47's. This estimate is not prevalent in the French wine trade.
